Market Commentary

During Q3, the US economy performed strongly and unemployment fell to its lowest level since the late sixties. Positive news flow from the economy helped to support the US stock market, which reached a new high in September. Elsewhere, against the backdrop of continued support from the Japanese central bank, Japanese equities performed well.

Meanwhile, September saw the escalation of the trade war with the announcement of new tariffs, spurring China to make policy changes to protect their economy. In Europe, manufacturing exports weakened whilst Italian political developments continued to prove a headwind for the region. Domestically, the UK continued to suffer from Brexit related concerns and lack of progress in EU negotiations. Bond returns suffered as the US central bank, reacting to positive economic news, continued to raise interest rates, putting pressure on prices.

During September, the Emerging Market equity exposure was reduced by 1.5% (Fidelity Emerging Markets) whilst the UK exposure was further cut (MI Select Managers UK Equity). With the 2% generated, the US exposure was increased to reinforce our overweight stance through the MI Select Managers North American 1% and the Vanguard US Equity Index 1%. In a risk off month, the overweight to Asian equities detracted from performance, whilst the underweight position to bonds and property offered some support.

Past performance is not a guide to future performance. The value of investments and any income from them can fall and you may get back less than you invested.
